Art Unit: 3751

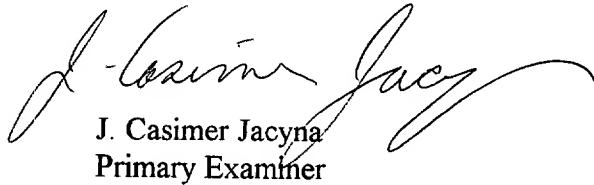

1. The prior art made of record and not relied upon is considered pertinent to applicant's disclosure. Hardesty and Bradley et al., teach other fluid injection systems for air conditioners. Brass teaches the injection of either lubricant or a dye or both into an air conditioning system.
2. The following is an examiner's statement of reasons for allowance: In an interview with Mr. Dante J. Picciano on 5/15/2001, it was agreed that there was a difference in wording between claim 1 of patent 6,186,197 which required both a lubricant and a fluid dye, and the current claim 13 which calls for a group of fluids wherein the fluid can be either a lubricant or a fluid dye or a combination of both. It was agreed that this wording is broader than the wording in claim 1 of the 197 patent because it does not require the combination of both the dye and the lubricant and allows either the dye or the lubricant to be used separately. Consequently, it was agreed that the 35 U.S.C. 101 rejection of 5/7/2001 was in error because current claim 13 is broader and covers a larger variety of fluid combinations wherein the 101 rejection is withdrawn. It was agreed that the prior art of record in the parent application 09/535,368 rendered the broader choices in fluid combination obvious wherein a terminal disclaimer was required.

As noted in the reasons for allowance of 9/8/2000 in the '197 parent application 09/535,368, it was noted that the prior art of record did not teach the specific structure of the fluid coupling means and connector assembly wherein whether or not the dispensed fluid was either a lubricant or a dye alone, or a combination thereof, was not a factor in issuing the '197 application. Therefore, claim 13 is issued for the same reasons as stated in the 9/8/2000 reasons for allowance in application 09/535,368.

New corrected drawings must be filed with the changes incorporated therein. All changes to the drawings, other than informalities noted by the Draftsperson, MUST be made in the same manner as above except that, normally, a highlighted (preferably red ink) sketch of the changes to be incorporated into the new drawings MUST be approved by the examiner before the application will be allowed. No changes will be permitted to be made, other than correction of informalities, unless the examiner has approved the proposed changes.

Timing of Corrections

Applicant is required to submit the drawing corrections within the time period set in the attached Office communication. See 37 CFR 1.85(a).

Failure to take corrective action within the set period will result in ABANDONMENT of the application.
